Schroder ISF* Global Corporate Bond

Fund Managers: Chris Eger, Tom Truxillo, Alix Stewart, Cindy Wang | Fund update: July 2024

Market Overview

- Global investment grade (IG) corporate bonds posted positive returns over the month.
- In July, President Biden withdrew his candidacy for the upcoming Presidential election in November. The markets were quick to price in a win for former President Trump which meant higher yields on the belief that a Trump victory would be inflationary.
- However, a tech led sell off in equities due to earnings misses resulted in modest demand for safe haven assets, and Treasuries rallied into month-end. Lower yields were also the result of data released in July which reflected softening employment and inflation.
- The short end benefitted notably as traders became more confident of a rate cut by the Federal Reserve in September.
- The fund outperformed the benchmark over the month with both posting positive total returns.

Drivers of fund performance

- Positive curve impacts and security selection were the main drivers of outperformance.
- Curve contributions were driven by our relative overweight to the shorter end of the curve with rates steepening.
- Security selection was driven mostly by communications.
- Asset allocation was flat for the month.
- In terms of quality, an allocation to high yield was additive for the month.
- Over the month, we increased our exposure to treasuries, basic industry and increased our cash allocation. We also reduced our exposure to brokerage, utilities and banking.
- The fund's sustainability metrics remained largely unchanged. The fund's sustainability score as measured by SustainEx remains greater than that of the benchmark.

Outlook/positioning

- We believe IG corporate bonds remain an attractive investment opportunity. Technicals are the key driver of the asset class, and demand for yield has been the primary technical support.
- We remain comfortable being long credit risk given attractive yields and the resulting strong demand for the asset class.
- We expect continued earnings growth of mid-high single digits. Leverage metrics deteriorated very slightly but remains stable.
- We believe that technical factors are supportive for the asset class. Yields for the asset class remain attractive, which is consistently drawing in both foreign and domestic investors.
- Primary issuance may be higher than expected in the second half of the year, but we still expect demand to overwhelm supply.
- The fund is overweight the banking sector given attractive valuations and favourable assessments driven by robust capital, high liquidity, strong earnings and asset quality. While spreads have normalized relative to industrials, we believe the sector remains marginally attractive.
- We continue to see opportunities in energy given attractive spreads and strong balance sheets.
- On the other hand, we view defensive sectors such as healthcare, pharmaceuticals and food and beverage as offering limited value.

Past performance does not predict future returns. The value of investments and the income from them may go down as well as up and investors may not get back the amount originally invested.

Risk considerations

- Contingent convertible bonds: The fund may invest in contingent convertible bonds. If the financial strength of the issuer of a contingent convertible bond falls in a prescribed way, the value of the bond may fall significantly and, in the worst case, may result in losses to the fund.
- Counterparty risk: The fund may have contractual agreements with counterparties. If a counterparty is unable to fulfil their obligations, the sum that they owe to the fund may be lost in part or in whole.
- Credit risk: A decline in the financial health of an issuer could cause the value of its bonds to fall or become worthless.
- Currency risk: The fund may lose value as a result of movements in foreign exchange rates.
- Derivatives risk: Derivatives may be used to manage the portfolio efficiently. The fund may also materially invest in derivatives including using short selling and leverage techniques with the aim of making a return. A derivative may not perform as expected, may create losses greater than the cost of the derivative and may result in losses to the fund.
- Capital risk / distribution policy: As the fund intends to pay dividends regardless of its performance, a dividend may represent a return of part of the amount you invested.
- Sustainability risk: The fund has environmental and/or social characteristics. This means it may have limited exposure to some companies, industries or sectors and may forego certain investment opportunities, or dispose of certain holdings, that do not align with its sustainability criteria. Therefore, the fund may underperform other funds that do not apply similar criteria. The fund may invest in companies that do not reflect the beliefs and values of any particular investor.
- Interest rate risk: The fund may lose value as a direct result of interest rate changes.
- Liquidity risk: In difficult market conditions, the fund may not be able to sell a security for full value or at all. This could affect performance and could cause the fund to defer or suspend redemptions of its shares.
- Market risk: The value of investments can go up and down and an investor may not get back the amount initially invested.
- High yield bond risk: High yield bonds (normally lower rated or unrated) generally carry greater market, credit and liquidity risk.
- Operational risk: Operational processes, including those related to the safekeeping of assets, may fail. This may result in losses to the fund.
- Performance risk: Investment objectives express an intended result but there is no guarantee that such a result will be achieved. Depending on market conditions and the macro economic environment, investment objectives may become more difficult to achieve.
- IBOR risk: The transition of the financial markets away from the use of interbank offered rates (IBORs) to alternative reference rates may impact the valuation of certain holdings and disrupt liquidity in certain instruments. This may impact the investment performance of the fund.
